Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1400 on Friday 19 Mar 2021

UK Outlook for Wednesday 24 Mar 2021 to Friday 2 Apr 2021:
Bands of rain are likely to move in from the northwest, with the heaviest rain across northern and western parts of the UK. Some rain could extend into southeastern areas, bringing unsettled conditions for all at times. Otherwise southeastern parts are most likely to experience the best of any dry and sunny conditions. The strongest winds are likely to be across far northern and northwestern areas, with winds possibly being from fresh to strong across other parts too. Unsettled conditions may continue in the northwest through to the end of March. Temperatures are expected to be near to or a little above average, although short-lived cooler interludes could occur in the showery conditions following any weather fronts.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.